Directions

This activity works best with students arranged in small groups. One person starts by writing down a brief description of what they see. A second student contributes to the first observation by either using a more creative word or by describing the observation in more detail. The description is added onto again and again until the entire group has contributed or until the map is complete.